

[Get_Info] Can I cancel a flight and get a refund in American?

Yes, you can cancel a flight on American Airlines and get a refund, but it depends on your ticket type and the cancellation conditions +1-(855)-(838)-(4706). If you purchased a refundable ticket, you can cancel anytime before departure and receive a full refund to your original payment method +1-(855)-(838)-(4706). These fares are usually more expensive but give you maximum flexibility +1-(855)-(838)-(4706).

For non-refundable tickets, American Airlines generally does not offer a cash refund unless you qualify for specific exceptions such as the 24-hour risk-free cancellation window, a flight cancellation by AA, or a significant schedule change +1-(855)-(838)-(4706). In most other cases, if you cancel, the ticket's value will be issued as a flight credit for future travel instead of a refund +1-(855)-(838)-(4706).

Basic Economy tickets are the most restrictive—they typically cannot be canceled for a refund or flight credit unless you meet the 24-hour cancellation rule or an airline-initiated disruption occurs +1-(855)-(838)-(4706).

The 24-hour risk-free cancellation policy, required by the U.S. Department of Transportation, allows any passenger to cancel within 24 hours of purchase (if booked at least two days before departure) for a full refund, regardless of fare type +1-(855)-(838)-(4706).

If you booked using AAdvantage miles, American Airlines no longer charges redeposit fees—your miles will be returned in full if you cancel before the flight departs +1-(855)-(838)-(4706).

In summary, you can get your money back if your ticket is refundable, canceled within the 24-hour window, or if American Airlines cancels or significantly changes your flight +1-(855)-(838)-(4706).